

SHOOT WIFE AND SON WHO RESISTED

Young Man's Body Pierced by Father's Bullet as He Tried to Protect Mother.

Lying in adjoining wards in Flower Hospital are Mrs. Mary Quinn, forty years old, of No. 539 West Forty-ninth street, and her son William, twenty-one years old, both suffering from bullet wounds which they assert were inflicted by Patrick Quinn, husband of Mrs. Quinn, yesterday. Quinn was arrested by Sergeant John G. Byer, of the Aqueduct police, as he was leaving the Quinn apartment with a revolver in his hand.

The Quinns have lived apart for some months, and, according to the police, Quinn has been annoying his wife. Mrs. Quinn was employed as housekeeper in a home in Madison avenue, and Quinn went there early yesterday and then followed her to her home. Quinn sought to enter the apartment, but was restrained by his son William.

The police assert that Quinn became enraged at this, and, drawing a revolver, told his son that he purposed to kill the young man's mother. The boy struggled with his father for possession of the revolver, and in the scuffle the weapon was discharged, the bullet passing through the young man's body just beneath the arch of the ribs.

Straggling into the room where Mrs. Quinn was with three other children, William shouted to his mother to save herself and then collapsed. Mrs. Quinn told the police that her husband appeared in the doorway and fired four shots at her, one penetrating her leg and another grazing her back. His revolver being empty, Quinn ran from the room.

Sergeant Byer, who was visiting a friend in the apartment house, heard the shots, and he says he reached the Quinn door just as Quinn emerged with the revolver in his hand. He jumped upon Quinn and after a hard fight disarmed him and turned him over to the police of the West Forty-seventh street station, where he was locked up pending the outcome of the wounds of his wife and son.

Although the condition of the woman and her son is serious, it is believed both will recover.

SNOW TAMES GAME BIRDS.

Connecticut Farmers Find Quail and Other Wild Fowl Roosting Among Hens.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE HERALD.] PLAINFIELD, Conn., Saturday.—Owing to the heavy fall of snow thousands of quail and other wild birds are driven to the shelter of barnyards.

In Canterbury a farmer went out to feed his hens this morning and found a dozen quail roosting among them. The game wardens and assistants are building bush and feed shelters for them to-day.

Said $5.25 Would Buy a Husband

One Offered at That Price by Seer. Asserted Matron—Too High, Magistrate Ruled.

When Magistrate House in the Jefferson Market Police Court yesterday placed Mrs. Palsaro, accused of fortune telling, under $1,000 bonds to assure her good behavior for one year he did not deprive her of her sense of humor. She uttered a prayer, which she translated as—"The spirit of all time is reprimanded most severely for not warning me it was leap year."

Mrs. Isabella Goodman, a police matron, visited Mrs. Palsaro, whose other name is Jane Majona, at her home, at No. 234 King street, on January 8. Mrs. Goodman asserted that Mrs. Palsaro had placed the price of husbands at $5.25.

First, it was alleged by Mrs. Goodman, a payment of $1.25 was asked. Then Mrs. Goodman said she asked:—"I wish to know whether my gentleman friend will marry?"

"Yes," Mrs. Palsaro was said to have replied, "I will get him to marry you for $5.25."

"He is jealous of another!" According to Mrs. Goodman, she was told, the quail could be fixed up for $5.25, or a perfectly good new young man, who was certain to marry the police matron, could be obtained for $5.25.

Mrs. Goodman, in her defense, asserted that Mrs. Goodman had offered $10 to her to get the woman's fiancé to "come back." She said she had given advice to the effect that the police matron ought to let the young man go on his way and take a second.

The Magistrate remarked that the price for husbands, taking into consideration that it was leap year, was prohibitive.

Estimate Board Blamed for Death

Commissioner Drummond Says Fatality at City Farm Was Due to Lack of Attendants.

That the death of Charles Williams, a patient at the New York City Farm Colony, near Four Corners, Staten Island, last Wednesday, who was stricken with apoplexy while being given a bath by two other patients of the farm who were acting as orderlies, was indirectly due to the negligence of the Board of Estimate in refusing sufficient appropriations to allow the hiring of paid attendants, was the statement made last night to a Herald reporter by Michael J. Drummond, Commissioner of Charities.

"We have to do the best we can with the poor material given to us," said Commissioner Drummond. "The Charities Commission, the State Board of Charities and almost every other organization which has asked time and again that enough money be given to the department to allow it to maintain this farm, which is really the city poor farm, to take care of its patients properly, but every time we have been refused."

"We are now harboring 1,100 persons on the same appropriation with which we took care of only 600 last year. We asked for $17,000, but we only got $12,952."

It is pointed out that the appropriation of $12,952 covers every expense of the colony, including the wages of the superintendent, the clerks and one trained nurse at $900 a year. This nurse is the only person at the colony which is professionally equipped with the knowledge of caring for the inmates, many of whom are paralytic, feeble-minded or too old to be of service. The two patients who gave Mr. Williams his bath were themselves old men, incapable of handling his heavy body carefully, and when he was placed in the tub of scalding hot water they lifted him out as best they could and then fled.

"The superintendent, Mr. Black, is not to blame," said Mr. Drummond. "It is impossible for him to see that everything is carried out according to his orders. His administration is excellent."

ICE BOUND. TROOPS HUNGRY.

Garrison at Fort Greble Faces Starvation and Water Supply Is Endangered.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE HERALD.] NEWPORT, R. I., Saturday.—Ice packing the west passage into Narragansett Bay is expected to make serious trouble for the Garrison of Fort Greble, on Dutch Island. The island is completely cut off from the mainland to-night, and the schooner Theima is anchored about where the water main to the fort crosses the passage. It is feared that if she drags she will catch her anchor in the main and break it. This would cut off the Garrison's water supply. Two men from Fort Getty, on the mainland, went to Fort Greble to-day, and when they tried to return they could not, owing to the ice having packed in.

Priests Hurt by Falls on Ice. The Rev. Thomas A. Corr, assistant rector of St. Lucy's Roman Catholic Church, Jersey City, fell on snow covered ice at Grove and Thirtieth streets yesterday and his right ankle was fractured. The Rev. Mark Duffy, assistant rector of St. Michael's Church, in Ninth street, Jersey City, fell on a sidewalk Friday evening and sprained his knee.

RICHESON TO DIE, MR. FOSS DECIDES

Statement from Governor's Office Indicates He Will Not Interfere in Sentence.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE HERALD.] BOSTON, Mass., Saturday.—Governor Eugene N. Foss indicated in a statement which he directed his secretary, Mr. Dudley M. Holman, to issue to-night that he will not recommend the commutation to life imprisonment of the sentence of death imposed on the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, murderer of Miss Avis Linnell.

The Governor, it is said, has been carefully watching the development of public opinion, and has come to the conclusion he should not interfere with the carrying out of the law's penalty during the week of May 19. The statement of Mr. Holman reads:—"The Governor personally does not believe in capital punishment; nevertheless the death sentence is imposed by the courts of the Commonwealth in conformity with the law. Such being the case, Governor Foss has never sought to go beyond the clearly defined duty of his office, and he directs me to state that under no conditions whatever will he either seek to exceed the power vested in him or evade the responsibility fixed upon him by the constitution and statutes of the Commonwealth."

"I do not believe," said Mr. W. A. Morse, Richeson's counsel, when he had read the statement, "that this settles the matter. I am satisfied that the Governor will do what is right after all the facts have been presented to him."

Richeson will never make public a more detailed confession or explanation of his poisoning of Miss Avis Linnell than has already been given out, in the opinion of Mr. Morse, who to-day visited the condemned clergyman at the jail. "Such an explanation could accomplish no useful purpose," said Mr. Morse, "and would only cater to morbid curiosity."

The attorney said that Richeson appeared much more buoyant than before he confessed his crime.

Intensely interesting is the new novel written especially for the SUNDAY NEW YORK HERALD by the great writer of sea stories, Joseph Conrad. It is called "Chance." First instalment next Sunday.

MAY CLIMB PEAK MORE THAN ONCE

Professor Parker, Now on Way to Mount McKinley, Outlines Plans to Columbia Students.

HE WILL LIVE ON GAME

If the Summit Is Reached He Will Make Several Ascents to Verify His Observations.

In another attempt to scale the peaks of Mount McKinley, Professor Herschel C. Parker, of Columbia University, is now on his way to Seattle, Wash., where he will board a steamship for Alaska. In this, his third, expedition he will be accompanied by Belmont Brown, the Tacoma mountain climber.

Columbia University has displayed unusual interest in the professor's undertaking. Before departing Friday evening he gave the details of his plans to a number of college men and stated that he was confident that he had solved several of the problems which perplexed him on the trip with Dr. Cook in 1906 and with Brown in 1910.

Should the explorers of Mount McKinley be successful they will have reached the summits of each of the mountain's three peaks and will have completed scientific observations from those elevations before the beginning of summer. On reaching the foot of the mountain early in March a camp will be established as a base of supplies.

With the first camp prepared the work of placing a second on the 10,000 foot level will be begun. Arthur Aten, of Valdez, Alaska, has been employed to handle the dogs and sledges and will remain in the base camp, while Professor Parker, Brown and Merl Lavy, an Alaskan climber, will ascend to the slight plateau half way up the mountain.

Their outfit includes two sledges with Eskimo dogs in charge of Aten. All supplies are to be carried on these sledges and the total weight will be less than two thousand pounds. After passing the timber line the party will rely on 150 gallons of alcohol and about one thousand pounds of condensed foods for their fuel and sustenance in the struggle for the top. More than five hundred pounds of testing ropes and miscellany will be necessary. Nearly a month will be spent at the second camp before the first peak is attempted. It will probably be late in April before the final preparations will have been made for the dash. By this time the extreme winds will have lowered and the ice will be in condition for transportation.

Should the expedition be successful they will return to the base camp and, leaving Lavy in camp, return with Aten to the summits again. By repeated trips the explorers expect to get photographs and observations of material value to scientists. If conditions prevent an immediate ascent they will remain in the lower camp throughout the summer.

After having scaled the peaks the entire party will return by the other side of the mountain, which abounds in game. For speed the food supplies will be abandoned and the return trip made with reliance on the game of the region for sustenance until the outlying settlements of the territory are reached.

Professor Parker expects to be back in New York in less than a year and feels that, profiting by former experience, the peak will be scaled in this attempt.
